Community Association Managers (CAMs) work on behalf of homeowners’ Associations to provide consistent community standards, common areas and special amenities, and the potential for greater asset appreciation.

A career as a Community Association Manager
Successful CAMs work well with people, have strong organizational skills, excel at conflict resolution, and are committed to customer service. They may be employed to manage planned communities, cooperatives, senior housing, and/or condominium developments.

Homeowners’ Associations (HOAs) have grown in popularity across the US. In Nevada alone, there are nearly 3,000 homeowners associations governing almost a half million single-family homes, condominiums, and townhomes. The number of HOAs, and therefore the need for Community Association Managers, is expected to continue to grow along with the population.

Nevada Employment Outlook:
The US Bureau of Labor Statistics projects a 7% increase in demand for Community Association Managers nationwide over the next decade. Annual mean wage in Nevada was $53,650 in 2018.

Nevada requires Community Association Manager Certification
Community Association Managers (CAMs) must be certified by the state of Nevada. Candidates must complete 60 hours of pre-certification training and pass a state licensing exam to work as a Provisional Community Association Manager. Provisional CAMs work under the direction of a Supervisory CAM for two years before being eligible for regular status. CAMs must also complete 18 hours of continuing education credits every two years for renewal.
